

The Beaver County ChancesR: Re-Entry, Reunification, and Recovery Program focuses on Beaver County residents with a substance use disorder (SUD) or a co-occurring substance use and mental health disorder (COD), and who have been sentenced for their crimes to the Beaver County Jail. ChancesR addresses the issues that hinder an offender's successful return to the community upon release from jail and places an emphasis on the difficulties those released face in obtaining and keeping employment. This fact sheet looks at those individuals who attended therapeutic treatment group sessions while enrolled in the ChancesR Program.

Who is attending treatment?

Between March 2011 and March 2012, of the 316 individuals who were enrolled into the ChancesR Program, one-fourth of them (79) who having been evaluated with a co-occurring disorder, attended therapeutic treatment group sessions in the jail. Therapeutic treatment group sessions, which occurred multiple days a week, address issues directly related to the individuals' co-occurring disorders.

Overall, the percentage of males (53.2%) attending treatment sessions is just slightly higher than females (46.8%) while in contrast, the overall population of ChancesR is substantially higher with males (75.5%) than females (24.5%). This indicates that a greater proportion of females are attending treatment sessions than males. With respect to racial distribution, the graph on the right shows that the male to female ratio is quite close between African American, Caucasian and Other. Additionally, the majority of individuals taking part in treatment sessions are Caucasian (with 61% of them being men and 59.5% being women). This is consistent with the percentage of Caucasian clients in the program overall which falls at 66.4%.
